  - iii) Madison Community Arts Center Report from Eric Hafen:
    - All three performances the weekend of February 7-9, were very successful. The Friday fundraiser for the arts center sold out and had a few walk-ups as well. Lucky In Love Saturday night sold out. One Singular Night: Music of Gershwin and Hamlisch concert was the first of the Intimate Artist Series. We had 60% of the house sold. The artist expressed an interest in returning next season.
    - The Rio Clemente Concert on February 17, which received outside marketing support from NJ Jazz Society, was also very well attended.
    - The Madison Arts and Culture Alliance (MACA) received a $45,000 grant from the Smart Family Foundation for a capital purchase of lighting equipment for the arts center. This is the first of solicited funds to provide theatrics to the arts center, i.e. grid, sound and lights, to fulfill the goal of making the center a multi-purpose visual and performing arts venue for the borough.
    - New “pre-summer” concert series is slated to open on Friday, May 1, outside on the outdoor stage of the arts center. The first artist will be the Chatham Big Band. Subsequent concerts
